The Historic Capitol Theatre

Located in downtown Yakima, the historic Capitol Theatre serves as one of Yakima's performing arts facilities. The completely refurbished 82-year-old Vaudeville theatre seats 1,500 people, and is a true testament to the community's dedication to its past and the arts. The stage is home to the productions of numerous local organizations such as the Yakima Symphony Orchestra, Town Hall Series, Community Concerts, as well as national tours and spectacular Broadway touring productions.

4th Street Theatre

The newest addition to the local performance art scene is The Capitol Theatre's 4th Street Theatre. This "black box" theatre was designed as a smaller venue to accommodate more informal styles of entertainment. The 4th Street Theatre's unique club ambiance exudes a relaxed and sophisticated mood while immersing in a live performance. Arrive early and stay late to enjoy a glass of wine or beer with friends and share thoughts about the show.

Allied Arts of Yakima Valley

Yakima's Allied Arts Center serves as another recognizable arts hub, located in west Yakima. At the Center, Allied Arts of Yakima Valley manages an outstanding art gallery and offers art classes, poetry readings, lectures, films and more. Additionally, the Center is home to the Warehouse Theatre Company, which produces an impressive series of community plays at the Center's 210-seat theatre.

Yakima Symphony Orchestra

Yakima's Symphony Orchestra provides an outstanding musical series. Each performance includes incredible guest artists accompanied by the orchestra. If it's Folk music you are interested in, the Yakima Valley Museum and Yakima Folk Life Association presents a series of monthly Folklife concerts that run from October through April and feature regional, national, and international artists. Each summer an annual Folklife Festival features acclaimed musicians from the entire region that play in the museum, Franklin Park, and venues around town.

The Seasons Music Festival

The Seasons Music Festival is another venue contributing to the local performing arts scene in downtown Yakima. The former church was built using 17th century Italian architectural designs. Its stained glass windows and high arching majestic ceiling provide the perfect ambiance for music and unparalleled natural acoustics. A full schedule of quality jazz and classical performances are a perfect complement to your visit to the Valley.
